FRIDAY MAY 11.

SALOONS AND SCHOOLS.

The other day the city council of Chicago took a vote on a very grave and important question, and the result was one of these surprises which come now and then to shake one's confidence in the manhood of men, especially of that class of men, who through their political associations, are tools of the liquor interest.

A democratic judge in Chicago recently decided that the council could not refuse to grant a license to a saloon keeper on the ground that a church or a school was in close proximity. To remedy this evil an ordinance was drawn restricting the location of saloons within 200 feet of a school house or church. It would seem that an alderman of any sort of manly instinct, having regard for common decency, would have voted for that ordinance But out of a vote of 48, there were 28 against the passage of the ordinance, and therefore it was defeated.

The Inter Ocean, in commenting on the vote regarding the ordinance, says: "If it shall be found necessary to raise that issue at the next city election then the republican party should, and we believe will, have no hesitation in meeting it. There could be no more binding duty than that to shield the young from special exposure to the greatest of all the evils which curse mankind and lure the unwary to destruction. The vote of last Monday night meant that a majority of our city council, rather than run the risk of offending a few liquor dealers who might be forced by the proposed ordinance to move, deliberately run the risk of placing temptation before all our school children. Our churches have Sunday school attachments, and by refusing to protect either churches or schools the council virtually took upon itself the responsibility of putting the children in constant danger, week days and Sundays, of being brought to a fate worse than death itself."

The Inter Ocean should have given the political complexion of that vote. That is all-important at this time. There is a party attempting to command respect by making war on the republican party. It pretends to be a great moral party, and yet it is doing that kind of work which tends to the keeping in office that class of men who voted in Chicago that a saloon may be established right under the very shadow of a church or a school house. The vote permitting this to be done was a democratic vote, and the vote against it, was a republican vote. Let the Inter Ocean print an analysis of the vote and thus verify the statement of the Gazette.

The stampede of the Irish vote for Blaine has considerably opened the eyes of the democratic leaders. The condition of things in the democratic party as regards that vote, will be seen by the following paragraph:

The selection of Congressman "Pat" Collins, of Massachusetts, to preside over the democratic national convention, which has virtually been decided upon, is, of course, simply a bid for the Irish vote. The democracy has many abler, better known and more experienced members in public life than P. A. Collins, and under the conditions prevailing a few years ago the selection of a man like Collins for that post would not be thought of. Recently, however, there has been a great break of the Irish from the democracy, which threatens the supremacy of that party even in New York, Brooklyn and Boston. To keep its hold on the Irish the party will now sacrifice its pride and prejudices in a way in which it never dreamed of doing in the good old days when the Irish voter would, without hesitation, cast his ballot for any ticket bearing the democratic label.

For years and years the democratic leaders never thought that the Irish were good for anything but to vote the democratic ticket, and now that thousands of them are becoming republicans, the democratic managers want to tickle them by bestowing upon one of their men a little empty honor. This is intended as sop for the Irish, but the giving to "Pat" Collins the chairmanship of the cut and dried convention will make amends for the slights the Irish have received from the democratic managers. In politics, intelligent Irishmen like turkey as well as any one, but they have been fed on owl, and their political stomachs are beginning to rebel. This is no wonder.

If the republican candidate for the presidency is taken from the west, as now seems probable, William Walter Phelps of New Jersey will be among the first considered for the second place. Mr. Phelps is a man of ability, character, and wealth, and a recognized leader of the republicans in the house.

The foregoing paragraph is from that noted mugwump paper, the Springfield, (Mass.) Republican, and it is pleasant to note such a fine compliment to so worthy a republican in a mugwump journal. Mr. Phelps is one of the very best men in this country. He is rich, immensely rich, and he has ability, but above all this he has a wealth of character that stands like an imperishable monument to the man. He has a conscience and a heart that stamp him as a great man. When he was minister plenipotentiary to Austria, five years ago, he received a cable dispatch saying that his mills had burned down, throwing several hundred hands out of employment. He immediately cabled the company directing that all heads of families who had lost their places by the fire should be kept on the pay roll until the mills were rebuilt, and the expense charged to his account. This is the kind of a man William Walter Phelps is. Such a man is worthy of the highest place that can be attained by any American.

The new high license law has closed 500 saloons in Pittsburg out of a total of 727 in operation a year ago. The law is doing equally effective work in the remainder of the state. This is the record which is disrupting the prohibition party throughout Pennsylvania and sending its members back to the republican fold.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The effect of very high license is the same in Nebraska and Minnesota as it is in Pennsylvania, so far as reducing saloons is concerned, and many of the wiser-heads among the prohibitionists are supporting this practical temperance measure; but there are some whose sentiment is prohibition or nothing. To such, one hundred saloons are just as bad in a large city as one thousand, and there is no compromise in them. One of the soundest principles in temperance reform is to make all the progress you can, gaining ground inch by inch and holding it until the saloon is wiped out entirely. But with the third party men, it seems to be prohibition or free whisky.

The Chicago Journal appreciates a good presidential candidate when it sees one, as will be seen by the following:

The Wisconsin Republican State Convention yesterday unanimously endorsed Governor Jeremiah M. Rusk, of that state, for the presidency, and the delegation from that state will press his name in the national convention. The Wisconsin governor was a brave soldier in the late war, and is a popular and efficient executive. His prompt and fearless course in putting down the anarchist uprising at Milwaukee two years ago is a big feather in Governor Rusk's cap, and commends him to the respect of the country.

A story is told that Mr. Fuller, who has been nominated for chief justice of the supreme court, was once a legislative reporter at the Maine capitol. On one occasion he made a wager that on the following day, in his report, he would put a Shakespearean phrase in the mouth of every member of the house who spoke; He did it, even to the member who made the motion to adjourn. On the day following the house was so pleased with the work of the young reporter that it grew magnanimous, and voted him an extra supply of pencils and rubbers. He was called out from his work, complimented, and called upon for a speech.

The most progressive merchant of this age, is John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia. He has just divided among 272 employes whose names were on the roll of honor a part of last year's profits, amounting to $40,281.02, nearly $150 each. He also gave to the employes' pension a check for $10,000, and his total payments to the various funds for the benefit of his help during the year amounted to $109,439.68. In addition to this, he gives his unmarried female help, board and lodging in his elegant boarding house for $3.50 a week which includes bath rooms, heat, lights, and in fact every convenience which any one can buy at a first class hotel.

The Huntington, Tennessee, Republican, thinks no stronger appeal to southern pride, and hence no better movement for breaking up the solid south could be made at Chicago than to name for vice president a man living in Dixie. If, for instance, that honor were conferred upon William R. Moore, of Memphis, the Republican declares, Tennessee would give the ticket twenty thousand majority. The democrats know by experience that Mr. Moore is a very strong man, but the majorities for him would not be counted. The ballot box in Dixie is perfectly depraved.

The chances of Mr. Cleveland of carrying New York are thus stated by the democratic New York Sun: "Mr. Cleveland had a majority of 192,000 in the state of New York only six years ago and now Col. Watterson gives him 100,000 this year. This is fully 100,000 more than is commonly expected by level-headed men."

There have been one hundred amendments to the Mills tariff bill—all of them coming from democrats. This shows how beautifully harmonious are the democrats on the tariff question. One of the surest predictions that can be made is that the democratic house will not "reform" the tariff. It does not know how.

If the democrats want to endorse Voorhees let them nominate him for vice-president. The nomination will fit exactly. It would suit the south, especially Jeff. Davis, and what would please Davis would delight Cleveland for in politics they are as David and Jonathan.

The smallest job the democrats ever had on hand in a national campaign year, is to nominate Cleveland. This will be done by acclamation, and the democrats will then be saved from any further trouble concerning Cleveland except when they attend his political funeral in November.

The Nashville American, a democratic newspaper, bids good bye to Mr. Cleveland, by saying that his election this year depends upon a tariff platform acceptable to New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Virginia and Indiana.

General George A. Sheridan has challenged Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll to a public debate on Christianity. The argument would be on the general's side, but Ingersoll's easy flow of words would carry the audience.

With groans and sighs, and dizzied eyes,
Poor Jack the couch and down he lies;
Nausea and faintness in him rise,
Brow-racking pains assail him,
Sick headache! But ere long comes ease,
His stomach settles into peace,
Within his head throbbings cease—
Pierce's Pellets never fail him!

Nor will they fail anyone in such a dire predicament. To the dyspeptic, the bilious, and the constipated, they are alike "a friend in need and a friend indeed."

THE FISHERIES.

The Senate Discusses the Treaty with England.

TWO REPORTS ON THE MEASURE.

The President's Action Regarding Several Points Denounced by the Majority—Several Congressmen Talk on the Tariff.

THE TREATY CRITICISED.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Senate yesterday reconsidered the vote by which the Railroad Land-Grant Forfeiture bill was passed. Amendments were adopted to protect pre-emption and homestead claimants and to confirm the titles of purchasers of certain railroad lands in Florida, and the bill was again passed.

The Senate in executive session discussed for two hours the propriety of considering the fisheries treaty in open session, or of admitting an official reporter with a view of having the discussion reported and subsequently made public in whole or in part. Several resolutions were pending, on by Senator Riddleberger (Va.) providing for an open discussion, one by Senator Hoar (Mass.) providing for a stenographer's report for subsequent publication, and one by Senator Morgan (Ala.) for a report for the confidential use of the Senate only. The Hoar resolution, slightly amended, was finally adopted. The question of giving publicity to the reports of the Foreign Relations Committee adverse to and in support of the treaty was then discussed, and the injunction of secrecy was removed from both.

The majority report, after an extended review of the objections urged and criticisms of the method of negotiation, summarizes the objections to the treaty. It is held that some of the bays left to be visited by American fishermen are valueless, and that whether bay fishing be or be not profitable, the United States ought not to give up the right of its vessels to visit these bays, which right has been exercised for more than a century. This right, it is declared, has once been affirmed to the United States by a tribunal organized under a treaty with England. The new area of delimitation puts American fishermen in great danger of unintentionally invading prohibited waters. Objection is taken to the three-mile limit, and it is held that the proposed treaty is a complete surrender of rights now existing under the treaties of 1783 and 1818, and other agreements, while allowing British-American vessels all commercial rights in ports of the United States. The majority report also calls attention to the irksome regulations which American fishermen are called upon to observe, and expresses the belief that present difficulties would only be increased by the adoption of the proposed treaty. The President's action in withholding part of the correspondence incidental to the negotiation of the treaty is resented as a violation of continuous practice since the foundation of the Government. The minority report claims that in view of the grave emergency presented by this old and harassing controversy formal and technical objections should not be urged, and that the interests of the entire country demand that the treaty be ratified. It is urged that to resort to treaty arrangements for regulating the fisheries is better than to depend upon the law of nations. Measures of retaliation, non-intercourse and other forms of hostility are deprecated, and it is claimed that in the negotiations of the treaty the President has only performed a plain duty, and has transferred to the Senate the grave responsibility which he has properly discharged. The report reviews the provisions of the treaty in detail and defends every provision, claiming that nothing is yielded that is of any value to our fishermen: that precedents have been carefully followed: that Great Britain has yielded her headland theory and made other important concessions, and that the treaty presents the only practical and expedient solution of the long-pending difficulties.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—A movement is on foot to extend the tariff debate until Saturday week in order to accommodate the members who desire to speak on the question.

Both branches of Congress have agreed to the conference report on the joint resolutions authorizing the President to arrange a conference with representatives of other American nations.

Mr. Cannon (Ill.) began his speech on the tariff by admitting that the revenues should be reduced. He arraigned the President for his veto of the Dependent Pension bill, which had prevented the distribution of that revenue among the defenders of the Union. This President had, however, signed the Mexican War Pension bill, and each of those soldiers, rich or poor, had his name inscribed on the pension-roll when he reached the age of 62 years. The widow of a Mexican war soldier whose husband fought to destroy the Union got a pension, while the widow of the Union soldier could only receive it by producing the strictest technical proof. The President piled up the surplus in 300 National banks to the amount of $60,000,000 without interest. It was only by the efforts of Messrs. Randall and Morrison that he had been forced to apply a part of that surplus to the redemption of bonds already due. Taking up the Tariff bill, Mr. Cannon denied that its tariff features would reduce the revenue one cent. History showed that as the duties were lowered the revenues increased. He declared that our wool industry would be destroyed if placed in competition with foreign wool. If, as he believed, a provision placing sugar on the free list would reduce the revenues as far as was prudent, he would enact such a provision, with the addition of the administrative laws, and stop there. The gentlemen on the other side all seemed to think that labor was oppressed in the United States. Let them look at the statistics—1,000,000 paupers in England and only 80,000 in the United States, with twice the population. He never could be accused of aspiring to be a leader, but he was willing to hang on the walls a banner bearing the inscription: "Twenty-four million dollars of internal revenue ($17,000,000 off tobacco and $7,000,000 off special licenses)," and under that write: "Free sugar and a bounty of two cents a pound." That was all that was needed to reduce the revenues $38,000,000.

Mr. Wilkinson (La.) argued for the bill and in favor of the sugar tax.

Mr. Brumm (Pa.) said it was not the fault of the tariff that there was distress in the coal and iron regions. It was the tyranny of Scott and Coxe and others like them which pitted the men against each other. He denounced the "gall" of the Southern Democrats who professed a great regard for labor. That same element had reduced its laborers to a more abject slavery than before the war. Then they named them slaves; to-day they added insult to injury by calling them free men, and disgracing them by placing them side by side with convicts and shooting them like dogs if they dared to protest.

Mr. Clements (Ga.) asked what protection was doing for labor. The American ironmaster got his labor as cheaply as he could, even if he had to go into other countries for it, even if he had to employ Pinkerton detectives to keep the laboring men of America from revolting against him. The talk about organized labor being peculiar to the North and not to the South was meaningless. There had risen up in the South to-day great organizations or federations of farmers. There were labor unions of one kind or another, too. All of them were the outgrowth of the condition in which the American people were placed to-day under the system of taxation. He abjured the gentlemen on the other side to abandon their discussion of the Confederate constitution and of slavery and to deal with this vital question, which concerned the people of the whole country.

There had been inaugurated in this country a system of investment which would make the debtor class of the United States, North and South, as dependent as the Irish were to-day. Money in great sums was being loaned on lands by associations, and the result would be that the great mass of our people would at no distant time be turned out of their homes, and the real estate of the country, like the money, would be accumulated in the hands of the few.

At its evening session the Tariff bill was discussed by Messrs. Bolden and Tracy (N. Y.), Atkinson and Yardley (Pa.), Dargan (S. C.), Nowton (La.), Lane and Post (Ill.), Candler (Ga.), Vance (Conn.) and Whiting (Mich.).

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

The Farwell Syndicate Said to Have Sold Their Texas Lands for $30,000,000.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Secretary John T. Dickinson, of the Texas Capitol Board, yesterday telegraphed John V. Farwell from Austin, Tex., that the Capitol Board had formally accepted the new State House built by the Farwell syndicate, and that the formal dedication would take place Wednesday next. Grand preparations have been made to celebrate the occasion with true Texas enthusiasm. President and Mrs. Cleveland, the United States Senate and House of Representatives, President Diaz of Mexico, together with the Cabinet officers of both the United States and Mexico and all the Governors of the various States of the Union, have been extended formal invitations to attend the dedicatory ceremonies. Among the features of the week's exercises will be State, inter-State and international encampments, and many of the famous military companies of the country will attend and take part in the competitive drill.

The completion of the Texas capitol entitles the Farwell syndicate to 3,500,000 acres of the choicest grazing and agricultural land in the pan-handle of Texas. It has long since been public rumor that the Farwell syndicate has disposed of the property for $30,000,000. The building has cost them upward of $7,000,000, and is acknowledged to be the finest State capitol in the United States. The land was only worth fifty cents an acre when the contract was made, but railroads and the prospects of more railroads have made the land worth fully $10 an acre.

NOT OPEN TO SETTLERS YET.

It Will Be Three Years Before the Sioux Reservation Can Be Occupied.

HURON, D. T., May 11.—The opening of the great Sioux Reservation will be no special advantage to the people at large for several years. It will require the remainder of this year to secure the necessary number of signatures by the Indians. All of 1889 will be required to survey it; most of 1890 will be used in having these surveys put through the United States Land Office. Not until the end of that year can settlers occupy the land, and then only homesteaders can take it. They must live on it four years and then pay fifty cents an acre for it.

A Merchant's Melancholy Fate.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 11.—The body of J. S. Cotton, of St. Louis, who mysteriously disappeared five weeks ago, was found Wednesday floating in the Tennessee river just above this city. Mr. Cotton was going north on the Cincinnati Southern train on the night of April 4, and it is supposed he fell from the train as it was crossing the railroad bridge ten miles north of the city and dropped into the river. Mr. Cotton was 65 years of age. Drafts amounting to $1,000 were found on his person.

The President Contributes $100.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Rev. A. Jaeger, D. D., of Virginia, called upon the President Wednesday, and after an interview with him on the proposed plan to establish an orphan asylum at Lynchburg, solicited aid in behalf of the institution. Later in the day the President sent Mr. Jaeger a check for $100 and a letter commending the project, and stated that it afforded him great pleasure to be able to assist in the good work.

Light Sugar Crops in Cuba.

HAVANA, May 11.—The sugar crop is virtually completed at Matanzas. The yield is estimated at from 10 to 20 per cent. below that of last year. At Sagua the decrease, it is stated, will be fully 25 per cent., and at Cienfuegos a similar result is expected. The prospects for next season are also rather gloomy. The prolonged drouth has largely destroyed the tender cane.

Raiding by Moonlighters.

DUBLIN, May 11.—The tenants of the Scott and other estates in the parish of Kildysart, County Clare, have adopted the plan of campaign. Moonlighters have raided four farms in the same parish because the occupants had paid their rents. They destroyed property and injured the tenants.

Boat Hanlan's Record.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 11.—Wednesday Teemer rowed over the college course—three miles, with a turn—to beat Hanlan's record of 19 minutes 23 seconds. He did it easily, covering the course in 19 minutes 4 seconds.

Big Order for Rolling Stock.

MONTREAL, Can., May 11.—The Canadian Pacific has issued orders for 5,000 box-cars and 200 locomotives to be ready by the end of the year.

Two People Killed by a Falling Tree.

BRADNER, O., May 11.—A falling tree yesterday morning killed Henry Morgan and his 10-year-old son.

The Cost of Good Work.

All good work is costly work. He who wants to do good work must be willing to do hard work, and to put himself into his work without regard to its cost of time and strength. Even so simple a matter as appearing cheerful before others, or as showing consideration of others, costs many a struggle with one's self and many an act of self-denial. It is of no use for one to say that it is not in his nature to be cheerful and kindly. The truth in his case is that he is not willing to be at the cost of making himself cheerful and kindly. We could have a great many more good things than we have, and we could do a great many more good things than we do, if only we were willing to be at the cost of such having and doing.—S. S. Times.

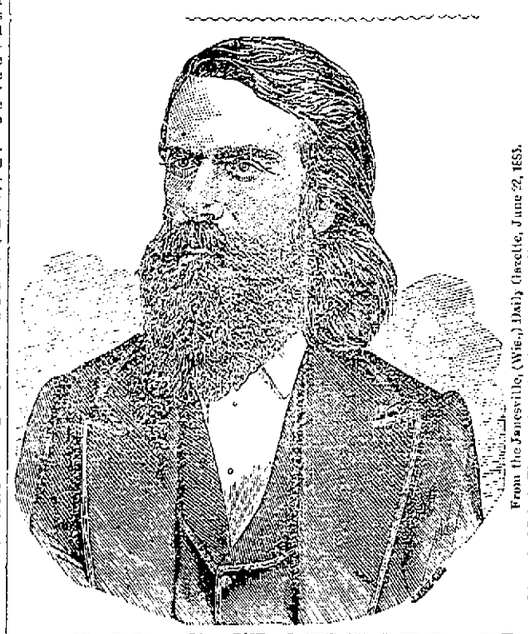
No Cure, No Pay—Four Days Only.



From the Janesville, (Wis.,) Daily Gazette, June 22, 1885.

I have had Sciatic Rheumatism six (6) years, gradually growing worse. My right leg had become shortened, so that I had to have my boot built raised two and one-half (2½) inches. I was confined to my bed, helpless, for three months. About May 31, and am pleased to say his medicines are the only medicines that helped me. In three (3) weeks my leg is lengthened three-quarters (¾) of an inch and I have better use of my limb. I could not walk up stairs one step after another for one year, but I can now.

THE CAMPAIGN.

Michigan Democrats Meet at Grand Rapids.

A LIST OF THE DELEGATES APPOINTED.

The Convention Indorses Cleveland—Stevenson Withdraws from the Race in Illinois—Congressional Nominations —Other Political News.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 11.—The Democratic State convention met here yesterday. L. G. Rutherford was chosen temporary chairman. In his address he mentioned the Ingalls-Voorhees incident. The name of the former was roundly hissed, while that of the latter was loudly cheered.

About fifty soldiers were among the delegates, and at Rutherford's call they vociferously denied the assumption that General Alger's Presidential aspirations had any favor with them. Delegates-at-large to the St. Louis convention were chosen as follows: Ex-Mayor Chamberlain, of Detroit; J. M. Weston, Grand Rapids; George L. Yaple, of Mondon, and Peter White, of Marquette. The district delegates are as follows:

First, Edmund Haag, R. W. Gillett; 2d, Charles R. Whitman, L. H. Salisbury; 3d, J. C. Parkhurst, Colonel Richards; 4th, H. C. Sherwood, W. O. Howard; 5th, Thomas Savage, Thomas N. McCarty; 6th, E. D. Winans, Byron G. Stout; 7th, A. W. McLellan, I. W. Hubbard; 8th, Free Estee, J. S. Crosby; 9th, A. V. Mann, W. P. Nesbitt; 10th, Joseph Turner, Maurice Finn; 11th, P. C. Hannigan, A. J. Scott.

The resolutions adopted indorse the Administration of President Cleveland and his tariff policy; approve of the conduct of the Pension Department under General Black, and appreciate the honor conferred upon Michigan by the appointment of Dickinson to the Cabinet. Judge Morse was incidentally mentioned for Vice-President.

Wellington R. Burt, aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Governor, was on the ground and entertained liberally. The slate is: J. M. Weston for National committeeman, to succeed Don Dickinson; Congressman Fisher for chairman of the State Central Committee, and Burt for Governor.

STEVENSON WITHDRAWS.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 11.—A. E. Stevenson, First Assistant Postmaster-General, has written to Hon. James S. Ewing, of this city, member of the Democratic State Central Committee, requesting that his name be not presented to the Illinois convention as candidate for Governor.

A NEW CHAIRMAN.

CHICAGO, May 11.—A. M. Jones was laid on the shelf by the Republican State Central committee yesterday afternoon, and the combination of the Bloomington, Springfield and Chicago crowds succeeded in electing General James S. Martin chairman of the committee. Jones has been chairman of the committee for the last ten years.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 11.—The Democratic State convention held yesterday selected delegates to the St. Louis convention and Presidential electors. The following are the delegates-at-large: Senator A. P. Gorman, Gorman H. Hunt, Colonel L. V. Baughman and John B. Brown. A platform was adopted which strongly indorses the Administration of President Cleveland and instructs the Maryland delegates to St. Louis to cast their votes solidly for him; declares in favor of tariff revision and reaffirms the resolutions of the Democratic National convention of 1884, which indicate how this revision should be accomplished.

VERMONT DEMOCRATS.

MONTPELIER, Vt., May 11.—The Democratic convention yesterday nominated a full State ticket, headed by S. C. Schultiff, of Montpelier, for Governor. Those delegates-at-large to the St. Louis convention were chosen. Hon. W. H. H. Bingham, of Hyde Park; J. D. Hanrahan, of Rutland; J. M. Senter, of Montpelier; Martin Goddard, of Ludlow. District delegates were also chosen, as well as Presidential electors. The platform urges the re-election of President Cleveland.

TENNESSEE DEMOCRATS.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 11.—In the Democratic State convention yesterday a resolution was introduced criticizing President Cleveland for allowing Republicans to remain in office, which was promptly tabled. Cheers for Cleveland were given with a will. These delegates-at-large to the St. Louis convention were then chosen: A. M. Looney, Captain John R. Goodwin, H. H. Ingersoll, of Knox, and ex-Governor John C. Brown, of Giles. The committee appointed to draw up the platform made their report, in which they heartily indorsed President Cleveland's Administration, his recent message to Congress and the management of affairs in Tennessee during the past two years. The report was adopted amid great enthusiasm. The convention adjourned at midnight after taking six ballots for Governor without result.

ALABAMA FOR CLEVELAND.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 11.—The State Democratic convention adjourned yesterday. The platform strongly indorses President Cleveland, and especially his action in trying to secure a reform and reduction of the tariff; instructs the delegates to vote for his renomination and favors a liberal appropriation by the State for public schools. The tariff plank is as follows:

"We are unalterably opposed to the present war tariff. We demand a reform of the tariff and a reduction of the surplus in the Treasury by a reduction of tariff taxation."

LABOR MEN AFTER SCOTT.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 11.—The labor men here propose to make war on Congressman Scott and try to prove that Scott is not the friend of the working people. Some of the leaders here have made note of the announcement of Mr. Scott that he will defend himself on the floor of the House and show that he pays as good wages as other capitalists. R. D. Layton, ex-general secretary of the Knights of Labor, left yesterday for Scott Haven, where a large number of men are employed by Scott in his coal mines. He proposes to get figures to show that the Erie man has always tried to secure labor cheaper than any one else. The statistics will be sent to Congressman Brumm, who will reply to Scott.

A LITTLE PENDLETON BOOM.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 11.—The Chronicle-Telegraph prints an interview with a prominent Ohio Democrat who says that a movement is afoot to make George H. Pendleton the Democratic nominee for the Vice-Presidency.

FOR CONGRESS.

The Fifth Ohio district Democratic convention held at Upper Sandusky Thursday renominated George F. Seney for Congress.

The First Vermont district Democrats have nominated Ogre Meacham, of Brandon, for Congress, and the Second district Democrats have honored George W. Smith, of White River Junction, with the nomination.

VIEWS OF MANY EDITORS.

CINCINNATI, May 11.—Sixty-six replies are printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer in response to telegrams sent to the leading newspapers of the United States asking their opinions as to the probable nominees at St. Louis and Chicago and the probable result of the election. As to the first place on the Democratic ticket but one editor out of the sixty-six doubts that Cleveland will be nominated as a matter of course, and the names of Gray and Blair are far in the lead in connection with the Vice-Presidency. It goes without saying that every editor of Democratic or independent leanings regards the re-election of Cleveland as assured beyond question. Among the Republican editors a large majority expect to see Blaine nominated at Chicago in spite of the Florence letter of withdrawal. As to the Vice-Presidency everybody is at sea. All the Republican expressions are to the effect that Cleveland's defeat is a foregone conclusion.

A SCARE AT BUFFALO.

Many Explosions of Natural Gas Cause Much Damage.

A FINE CHURCH EDIFICE DESTROYED.

A Number of Residences Badly Wrecked—Citizens Hastening to Have Their Meters Removed, Fearing Further Losses.

BLOWN UP BY NATURAL GAS.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 11.—Two big explosions and half a hundred smaller ones occurred in this city yesterday morning about 9:25 o'clock. The cause was an inordinate pressure on the natural-gas mains, which burst the sheet-iron meters, and caused ignition wherever fire was in the immediate vicinity. The first explosion was in the kitchen of Dr. Pierce's invalid hotel. A few minutes later a boom like the report of a cannon was heard at St. Paul's Cathedral, and fire burst from the windows and doors. Almost simultaneously telephone calls were sent in from a hundred places on Delaware avenue and other West-side residence streets. Householders were panic stricken.

The gas was shut off as soon as possible, but great damage had been done. Besides the burning of the cathedral, which was completely ruined inside, entailing a loss of $100,000, every consumer in the city was deprived of fuel, and in many houses small fires caught, which were happily seen and immediately subdued. But faith in the advantages of natural gas has received a terrible blow. The first man to subscribe for gas was the first man yesterday morning to order his bursted meter taken out. Many others did the same. The gas company had over 3,000 private consumers, and was extending its mains. Many new houses were fitted with gas-stoves, and have no other heating apparatus. Their occupants were compelled to eat cold meals or dine away from home yesterday. It is fortunate the explosion came in the temperate weather of May.

The cause of the explosion is due to some accident to the governors, just what the gas company does not know, or will not tell. Natural gas is piped about ninety miles to Buffalo from the Bradford district. The high pressure is reduced to low at governing stations near the city limits. It was brought here in the fall of 1885, and has been used a little over a year. Its introduction was thought an impossibility at first, and the new fuel won its way against much adverse sentiment. It has been considered a success, however, until this catastrophe.

The gas company hope to turn on the current afresh this morning to such as have unbroken meters. Plumbers have been overrun with orders to make repairs or to take out connections. No such excitement has been caused in Buffalo since the Richmond Hotel fire a year ago.

THE FLOODS.

The Mississippi Still Rising — Railroad Tracks Submerged.

QUINCY, Ill., May 11.—The flood is still increasing, the gauge now registering sixteen feet seven inches above low-water mark. Forty-five miles of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern track between here and Keokuk has been abandoned.

GALENA, Ill., May 11.—The track of the Galena & Madison division of the Chicago & Northwestern road is now completely submerged for a distance of four miles. The water is less than three inches below nearly all the first floors on Main street. The damage here has been great.

WAVERLY, Ia., May 11.—The Cedar river has risen five feet, and yesterday took out a portion of the dam here. There is danger of the mill being undermined. Families living on the low land near the river are moving.

BURLINGTON, Ia., May 11.—The river at this point is higher than in years and has covered the farms for miles in extent on the Illinois bottom lands. Much loss has been caused.

Coy and Bernhamer Jubilant.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 11.—It is authoritatively reported here that Judge Woods yesterday received an intimation from Washington that the decision in the election-conspiracy case against Coy and Bernhamer, the Democratic politicians convicted of tally-sheet frauds, would be reversed by the United States Supreme Court, and in consequence he postponed yesterday the argument on the third trial of their accomplices, which has been in progress for several days. Coy and Bernhamer, who are now in jail here, are very jubilant over the hopeful prospects for their release.

Another Railroad in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 11.—A new company to build another railroad across Northwestern Indiana was incorporated Wednesday. It is called the Ohio, Indiana & Missouri River road, with a capital stock of $4,000,000, and the line proposed is from a point on the Ohio line in Allen county to the Illinois line in Newton county, 150 miles. It is said the road is to become a link in a great trunk line.

Hibernians Denounce the Tories.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The Ancient Order of Hibernians in its convention yesterday adopted a resolution denouncing the Tory appeal to Rome as an evidence of weakness on the part of the English Government and a triumph for the brave Bishop, whose voice and act will surely convince the holy father that England's design, not Ireland's desire, asks his interference in the affairs of Ireland.

Over a Thousand Houses Burned.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 11.—The steamship Abyssinia, from Yokahama, brings Japanese advices up to April 24. A slight shock of earthquake was felt at Tokio on April 10. The Emperor has been slightly indisposed for some time. Fire at Ononae, Onogari, destroyed 1,005 houses. Thirty lives were lost and sixty-one persons injured.

Crops in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., May 11.—The Michigan monthly crop report, compiled from 901 reports from 078 townships, estimates the probable wheat yield at 50.8 per cent., 21 per cent. less than last year, promising 18,000,000 bushels, a decrease of 5,000,000.

In a Prosperous Condition.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The seventy-second annual meeting of the American Bible Society was held yesterday at the Bible house in this city. The cash receipts for general purposes during the year amounted to $537,840 and disbursements $506,453.

Suffocated in Bed.

ANDERSON, Ind., May 11.—The residence of Enoch McMahon, a prosperous farmer residing near Summitville, was burned Wednesday night. Mr. McMahon and his hired man, named Treat, were suffocated by the smoke.

Mexican Pilgrims at Naples.

LONDON, May 11.—The steamer Bolivia which left New York April 16, with a party of Mexican pilgrims on board bound for Rome, arrived at Naples May 7.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relied on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Get a free trial bottle at F. Sherer & Co's. Drug store.

I had a severe attack of catarrh, and became so deaf I could not hear common conversation. I suffered terribly from roaring in my head. I procured a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, and in three weeks could hear as well as I ever could, and now I can say to all who are afflicted with the worst of diseases, catarrh, take one bottle of Ely's Cream Balm and be cured. It is worth $1,000 to any man, woman or child suffering from catarrh.—A. E. Newman, Grayling, Mich.

Fired Into a Train.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 11.—As an Erie train was approaching the depot here early Thursday morning, John Pareno, an Italian from Braidwood, Ill., fired twice at Owen Howe, another passenger, inflicting a dangerous wound. One of the bullets cut the pendant from a woman's ear-ring. The Italian, who said Howe and others had robbed and attempted to kill him, tried to escape, but was captured. The belief is expressed that Pareno is a lunatic.

The Boom Suicide.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Developments in the case of the death in Nebraska, last week, of General Martin Boom, show with apparent clearness that a life rendered miserable by jealousy, ill-health and business difficulties was ended by suicide. A will, dated April 27 last, has been opened. It revokes an instrument in which three years before he devised all his property to his wife, and expresses apprehension that he may come to his death by foul means.

Pope Leo Criticises Parnell.

ROME, May 11.—The Pope, in conversing with an official of the vatican yesterday, took exception to Mr. Parnell's recent remarks on the Papal rescript. The Pope said that the Nationalists themselves disapproved of boycotting and the plan of campaign, still it was more the duty of the spiritual office to tell people the objectionable character of their actions.

An Explanation.

What is this nervous trouble with which so many seem now to be afflicted? If you will remember a few years ago the word malaria was comparatively unknown—to-day it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word covers only the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in times past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and Malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called Biliousness, and are all caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the Liver which in performing its functions finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channels is compelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, Malaria, Bilious Fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its cures are marvelous.

TERRORS OF CIVILIZATION.

The Injuns never toched him,
Nor the bears;
An' the rattlers never bit him,
An' the train robbers couldn't git him
On the cars.

'Twas a frigid day, and drizzly,
When the Rocky Mountain grizzly
Ever crep' within a rod of Jim the Scout;
An' the catamount an' bison
Never teched him more than pleas,
Which they allus much prefer to do without

But he moved into the city
Just for fun,
An' he sold his big six shooter,
An' he thought it would not do ter
Keep his gun.

But a muscular garroter,
Who was not a legal voter,
Robbed him of his watch an' wallet like a child,
Then a gas-pipe, over loaded,
Bust, an' Jim he got exploded,
An' came down considerable permiscuous an riled.

An' the bunco steerers fleeced him
Left and right;
An' the gamins ustor hoot him,
An' a slugger tried to shoot him
Tother night.

An' a boodlum tried to skin him,
An' an ingloo ran agin him,
An' a hordio, an' a hoss-car, an' a dray:
An' again, a little later,
In a rotten elevator,
He fell down thirteen stories in one day.

An' his house, it caught afire
Tother night,
An' his gas meter exploded,
(Jim didn't know that it was loaded)
Awful sight!

An' his house was widely scattered,
O'er the county it was spattered,
In a shower of chunks and cinders, so they said;
Jim was so completely shivered,
He hain't never been disk'vered,
But the coroner concluded he was dead.

SAVAGE ALLIGATORS.

An Island Where Hundreds of the Huge Reptiles Lived.

Cypress Lake, some twenty miles below Lake Tohopekaliga, on which this town is located, is a great resort for alligators, and especially so in the early spring, when the water first begins to grow warm, writes a St. Louis Globe-Democrat correspondent from Kissimmee, Fla. The lake is a shallow one, varying from four to twenty feet in depth, and on the west side there are a number of small islands, from one to ten acres in extent, rising just above the water's edge, and covered with a dense growth of cypress and stunted pine. These islands are great breeding places for the saurians, especially on one or two that have long sand-bars projecting out, where on warm, sunshiny days scores and scores of the scaly monsters can be seen basking in the sun and enjoying the warmth that the sand affords. There are several large bird rookeries there, too, on the islands, and hunting parties generally rendezvous there.

A party of four tourists who returned recently from a week's trip in that section looked rather dismal when asked about the sport that they had and were exceedingly uncommunicative in regard to it. A bright colored boy, about eighteen, who accompanied them as guide, cook and general factotum, finally let the cat out of the bag and gave the adventures of the hunters dead away.

For the first few days, said the boy, all went lovely and the sportsmen had fun in abundance. Fish were plenty, several 'gators were killed and one or two fine deer fell to their lot. When they came to Cypress lake they cruised around its shores, and finding the islands full of game decided to camp out. A sandy isle was selected as being free from mosquitos, and the hunters soon pitched their tent and were settled in camp fashion. The island was about four acres in extent, with no vegetation, though large cypress trunks or "knees" were standing up all over it. The boy told them that it was a great resort for alligators, and this made the hunters still more anxious to camp there. The night was a bright moonlight one, and after getting their supper under way they started out to explore the land.

A few steps outside the glare of the camp-fire one of them stepped on what he supposed was a dead log. Much to his surprise the seeming log lifted up and sent him flying, while the alligator, for such it was, with a snort of fright and anger dashed for the water. No bones were broken, and the adventure was taken in good part.

Shortly after, three nests were discovered, in two of which eggs were found, while in the third, which was close to the water, about a score of young 'gators rewarded their search. While they were cleaning it out a noise at the water's edge attracted their attention, and immediately an immense 'gator crawled up and advanced as rapidly as it could toward them, its loud bellow and puffing indicating anger rather than fear. Gathering up several of the youngsters the party beat a rapid retreat to their camp, as by some strange lack of foresight no arms had been carried along. Seizing their guns two of them ventured back anxious for 'gator scalps.

As they hurried on they heard the loud grunts and roars of the saurians on each side of the island, but they were entirely unprepared for the sight that burst on their vision as they reached the shore. The beach shelved gently down to the water's edge, and for several rods from land the water was shallow. Standing upon its forepaws beside its plundered nest was an immense female alligator, puffing and blowing, while right around and advancing in from the water were over a score of others, all roaring and opening and snapping their capacious jaws with an ominous sound, the strong, musky smell emitted filling the air for yards around. As soon as the brutes saw the hunters approach in the dim light they advanced on them, with every indication of the utmost anger and rage, seemingly devoid of fear. The boys fired several shots, severely wounding one or two, but the sound and flash seemed only to arouse still further the wrath of the reptiles, and the hunters fled back to the tent. The rest of the party, who had been preparing supper, etc., heard the uproar and came out, followed by Charlie, the colored boy, who confesses that he felt rather shaky, as he had never himself seen alligators so thoroughly enraged before. The re-enforcements came up, but on seeing the scores of 'gators crawl up they decided to retire.

On going back to the tent they found it nearly surrounded by 'gators who had crawled up from the opposite side, and the outlook was rather bad for nervous persons. The deer that they had hung before the fire soon fell into the coals, and the smell of burning meat permeated the air and seemed to make the saurians still more savage. Soon the party saw a circle of fiery eyes ranged nearly around their tent, and the situation was indeed growing desperate.

"This won't do, boys," called out Charley K., who aspired to be leader; "we must make a break for it or these devils will make pie-meat of us. Fire all at once, and then go for those stubs over there," said he, pointing to some half dozen dead lightwood trees and cypress trees that rose up some ten feet or so near by. The next moment the rifles rang out a volley, and the boys rushed forward through the lane their shots and sudden onslaught had made, and in less time than it takes to write it they were "shinning" up the trees of refuge. Charley, the colored boy, got left in the sudden rush, and came near meeting his death, for, as he sprang over a big 'gator, it rose suddenly on its forefeet, tripping him up and throwing him directly in front of an old saurian, who opened her jaws wide at the tempting morsel so opportunely thrown in his way. But Charley was game, and, diving under the one which had caused his fall, he leaped on the backs of the closely-packed reptiles, and on reaching the shore jumped into the boat, the impetus of his rush carrying it from shore.

As soon as the alligators recovered from the sudden rush made against them they plunged furiously forward, and in a few minutes the meat hanging on the spits and in front of the tent was torn into hundreds of pieces, the fierce animals fighting one another for the choice bits, like so many hungry dogs. Their huge forms floundered around, and in a second the tent was leveled and the space was occupied by a moving mass of the hideous brutes, moving around in the semi-darkness, blowing, puffing and roaring, the strong, musky odor nearly stifling the hunters on their narrow and uncomfortable perches. If ever hunters were fairly "treed" they were. They were all sitting astride of old dead limbs, on the stubs, all in the compass of a few yards. Two of them had their rifles but only a few rounds of cartridges. There they sat, and when the first fright had worn off they shouted out to each other to see if all were safe. After repeatedly calling "Charlie," "Charlie," a faint hello was heard from off the water and "Heah I am" came to their ears. They could do nothing, however, so sat still and endured the long hours the best they knew how.

Meanwhile the scaly reptiles moved over the island in countless numbers, jostling against one another, and hissing at times like so many gigantic geese. The tent was leveled, the canvas torn and trampled, the dishes, crockery, etc., broken and pandemonium generally raised.

About two o'clock in the morning as the tired hunters were nearly falling down from sheer fatigue, a horrible din underneath startled them into a full sense of their still great danger. A fight began in the center of the mass between two huge specimens and soon others joined in, till they thought from the horrible gnashing of teeth and the dull thumps of the flail-like tails of the 'gators that fully a half hundred were engaged in the deadly melee. Snarls, roars of pain and loud bellowings filled the air, and the rushes of the immense bodies were dimly discernible, the whole forming a scene indescribable, terrible and sickening.

As soon as the light of day appeared the reptiles retired and the hunters descended from the wearisome roosts. And such a sight as greeted their eyes, they say can not well be described. Their camp had disappeared, every thing being trampled into the ground or torn to pieces, while the scene of the combat looked as if a plowing contest had taken place there. Eight alligators were left dead on the spot, while pieces of tails, paws and other signs of the conflict were scattered about by scores. Charley was seen at a distance of half a mile from shore and it was some time before he could be induced to land. The hunters suffered terribly from mosquitoes and their faces presented a woeful appearance. Hastily securing all possible of their camp equipage they left the scene of their peculiar adventures and pulled lustily for home.

They are very sore on the subject of 'gator hunting, and desire no more of such exciting times.

Old hunters say that at times these islands seems to be the meeting place for opposing forces or families, led by old bulls, and that when they do meet, nothing seems to frighten them. The smell of burning meat, too, will attract them, and they have been known to travel half a mile from their ponds, attracted by frying or roasted meat at camp fires.

At logging camps they are frequent visitors at nights, and the theft of many a fine piece of venison or fresh pork is laid to their voraciousness.

ARTESIAN PICKEREL.

Surprising Strike of Mr. McMillan While Drilling in Winnipeg.

About two years ago, says the Winnipeg Sun, J. McMillan began sinking an artesian well on his premises, and after boring a long time the depth of fifty-five feet was reached, when the machine used in gouging into the bowels of the earth suddenly dropped of its own accord several inches, followed almost immediately by a large flow of water, coming apparently from some underground stream, pressing for an outlet. Other flowing wells having been discovered in the city, nothing unusual was thought of this, although the water came up with almost terrific force, throwing a stream which promised to not only furnish a good supply for the surrounding neighborhood, but shortly to turn the locality into a small lake.

A covering was secured for the well, and all was secured until some time after, when certain repairs were being made, and taking the top off again the water boiled up as furiously as ever, throwing out thousands of small pickerel. The little fish were alive, and came up in innumerable quantities for a considerable time. Last winter they made their appearance as usual, and also this winter, the last catch being now displayed at Alderman Ryan's store. The pipe in the artesian well is three and a half inches in circumference. The discovery is one unheard of in this country before, and hundreds of people will doubtless visit the well and see the strange sight of fish coming out of a pipe sunk fifty-five feet underground. The opinion is expressed that a small or large stream runs underneath the ground, probably coming from Lake Manitoba. Owing to the force of the water it would be impossible to sink spawn to the bottom of the well from which the fish might have originated.

In conversation with an old resident of Winnipeg recently it was learned that a similar discovery to that related above was made in this city about ten years ago. A well was sunk to a considerable depth, and small fish came forth in the water in countless numbers. It is a well-known fact that not one-half of the water going into the Assiniboia river flows out at its mouth. At Carberry and other points west large quantities of water work through the sand along the banks of the river, until it reaches the limestone strata, along the top of which, it is an asserted fact, numerous small streams of water find their way to this city, about the depth of the common street well, and hence the strange discovery above stated is accounted for.

Ringing Bells by Steam.

Ringing the bells of locomotives by steam is now effected by an ingenious apparatus, consisting of a small steam cylinder placed at one side of the bell-frame and resting on the boiler; the connecting-rod, which connects the piston to a three-inch crank on the bell, is so constructed that it will vary its length according to the swing of the bell, thus removing any liability of knocking the cylinder out by the piston coming in contact with it.

Lumber Swept Away!

LAWTON, Mich., May 11.—The dam at Hamlin went out with the flood Wednesday, and 3,000,000 feet of logs in Hamlin Lake went into Lake Michigan, carrying with them seventeen houses along the stream. The logs belong to Pardee, Cook & Co. The life-saving station had a narrow escape. The houses were all deserted in anticipation of the flood.

Iowa Sued by the Government.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 11.—Instructions were received Wednesday from the Department of Justice directing United States District Attorney Murphy to bring suit against the State of Iowa to determine the right to 20,000 acres of land in O'Brien County. The land in question is a part of the old Sioux City & St. Paul grant and that company still claims it.

A Double Tragedy.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 11.—Shortly before 11 o'clock Charles Turner, a German grocery-man, living at 653 East Ohio street, Allegheny City, shot his wife in the back and then shot himself in the head. Death was instantaneous in both cases. The cause of the tragedy was jealousy.

CONVENTION OF DOCTORS.

Dr. W. W. Dawson, of Cincinnati, Chosen President—Other Officers.

CINCINNATI, May 11.—At the opening of the Medical Association convention yesterday the secretary read a series of resolutions adopted by the Arkansas State Medical Association, which in the strongest possible terms denounced quackery and the journals—especially the religious journals—who sold their advertising space to quacks and humbugs calling themselves physicians. The paper was applauded. Dr. J. S. Hamilton, from the nominating committee, made a report which was adopted recommending the following persons for officers: President, W. W. Dawson, of Ohio; Treasurer, L. J. Dunglison, of Pennsylvania; Secretary, W. B. Atkinson, of Pennsylvania; Librarian, C. H. Kleinschmidt, of Washington, D. C. A long list of vice-presidents, trustees and members of the judicial council were chosen. Newport, R. I., was chosen for the next place of meeting in June of next year.

GENERAL GRANT'S BIRTH-PLACE.

The Humble Little Cottage to Be Taken to the Cincinnati Exposition for 100 Days.

BATAVIA, O., May 11.—The house in which General U. S. Grant was born, while nothing extraordinarily in itself, and nowise different from many humble homes up to this period, has been leased by Colonel Morton L. Hawkins, ex-sheriff of Hamilton County, and will be on exhibition for 100 days at the approaching centennial exposition at Cincinnati. It is to be lifted from its present foundation and beautiful site near the Ohio at Point Pleasant, this (Clermont) County, and put on a flatboat and floated down the river to Cincinnati.

St. Louis to Have New Stock Yards.

ST. LOUIS, May 11.—General Manager and Vice-President Clark, of the Missouri Pacific road, said yesterday that Jay Gould would support the new Stock Yard scheme, and as the Wabash and 'Frisco roads have already signified a willingness to take stock in it, the enterprise is almost certain to be carried out. The grounds were purchased and partly improved for the purpose several years ago, when some of the backers withdrew and the enterprise has been dormant ever since. The property is seven miles west of the court house, just outside of the city limits.

Blazing Shingles.

CHICAGO, May 11.—J. H. Pearson & Co.'s extensive lumber-yards, situated in the heart of the lumber district, at the corner of Thirty eighth and Laurel streets, had a narrow escape from total destruction by fire at an early hour. As it was, several million feet of lumber and shingles, valued at about $50,000, were burned, together with four dry kilns and a small planing-mill.

The Ladies' Confederate Monument.

MISSISSIPPI CITY, Miss., May 11.—A committee of the Ladies' Confederate Monument Association Wednesday called on Mr. Jefferson Davis and invited him to participate in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the Confederate monument at Jackson on the 26th inst. Mr. Davis expressed a desire to be present and will attend if his health permits.

The Earth Exhales Poison

To the air in localities where vegetation, rotted by freshets, is laid bare to the sun's rays by the retiring flood. Millions of square acres, in the vicinity of the great tributaries of the Mississippi and Missouri in the south and southwest, give forth this fever-laden miasmatic vapor disseminating malarial pestilence broadcast. Not only throughout the great west, but wherever on this continent fever and ague makes its periodic appearance—and what locality is wholly exempt from it—Bostetter's Stomach Bitters is the recognized defense, the most highly accredited and popular means of cure. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are eradicated by it. Nor is it less potent when used to remove constipation, liver complaint and dyspepsia, kidney troubles, nervousness and rheumatic ailments. Use it upon the first appearance of these troubles, and with persistence.

Brace Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness; and am able to do my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and removed completely all disease and pain." N. W. KITTSON IS DEAD.

St. Paul's Well Known Horseman Passed Away Suddenly While On the Cars.

His Remains Brought to this City and Sent from Here to St. Paul.

Commodore N. W. Kittson dropped dead last evening on the Northwestern train that reaches this city from Chicago at 8:40. The train was near Woodstock when the commodore left the smoking car to order his supper. Just as he entered the dining car he was seen to stagger and fall heavily to the floor. Assistance was at once at hand and the unconscious man carried to a seat. Everything was done to relieve him, but life was already extinct. Death was evidently caused by heart disease, as when the deceased left the smoking car he was apparently in good health, and had been conversing in his accustomed manner.

From Harvard dispatches were sent to H. D. McKinney and others in this city, and also to the family in St. Paul. The remains were brought to this city in the dining car. Arriving here they were taken in charge by W. H. Ashcraft, and embalmed.

Telegrams were received from the family stating that no inquest was desired, and the remains were therefore placed upon the two o'clock train, Mr. Ashcraft accompanying them to St. Paul.

Commodore Kittson, who was seventy-five years of age, had been one of the most prominent men in the northwest, and was especially well known at St. Paul. In addition to his numerous business pursuits he was for many years closely identified with trotting horses. He had been at his Erdenheim stock farm near Philadelphia for three weeks.

The commodore leaves eleven children. His estate is valued at several millions. Born in Lower Canada in 1814 of English stock he soon crossed the line and at the age of sixteen was engaged with the American Fur Company; came to Fort Snelling in 1834, and entered the sutlers department in 1839. He commenced business at a small point above Fort Snelling in 1843, became a partner with the American Fur company, and was elected a member of the Minnesota legislature along with Grant and Rollette.

Mr. Kittson dated his residence in St. Paul from 1854, and in 1858 he was elected mayor of the city. In 1860 he established a line of steamers on the Red River of the North, having his headquarters in St. Paul. The title of commodore was given him while proprietor of this line. Mr. Kittson's connection with J. J. Hill and Stevens, of Montreal, in the old Pacific Railroad company brought him a good round sum of money and with the money he was very lavish in building up one of the finest horse-breeding establishments in the country, his string with his fine breed of racers being worth close up to a million dollars. He also erected a $100,000 residence on Summit avenue, one elegant hotel, the Astoria. Also, the Clarendon, on Wabash street, and built the new and magnificent home of the St. Paul Globe. He also invested some hundreds of thousands of dollars in mercantile and manufacturing interests in St. Paul. His warmest friends were J. J. Hill, president of the Manitoba, and General H. H Sibley, both of St. Paul. Commodore Kittson had a warm and generous heart was quiet, unobtrusive and liberal, and leaves hundreds of true friends.

BRIEFLETS.

—Prof. J. B. Thayer, of Madison, is registered at the Grand.

—A special session of the county board will be held on Monday, May 28.

—Mr. George Brandt, of Pennsylvania, is studying medicine in the office of Dr. James Mills.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hall left this morning on their visit to Washington and the Virginia battlefields.

—W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, G. A. R., assemble in regular semi-monthly meeting this evening at Post hall.

—P. H. Swift, of the Rice Lake Berron county, Chronotype, was a welcome caller at the Gazette office this morning.

—Grenier Bros. circus opened in Chicago to good business. The Greneirs, who are also managers of the Lyceum theater, have shown themselves to be thoroughly wide-awake.

—The latest style of silk umbrellas have solid silver or natural wood handles. Those mounted with gold are no longer popular.

—The Original Sparks company will present "A Bunch of Keys, or, The Hotel," in this city on Thursday evening, May 17th.

—The remains of the late Patrick Ryan, who died October 4th, 1855, were removed from the old Catholic cemetery to the grounds now in use, to-day.

—What with cars ranging from bright red to green and from green to yellow, a procession over the Janesville street railway would resemble an opium-eater's dream.

—People's Lodge No. 160, Independent Order of Good Templars, assemble in regular weekly meeting this evening—lodge room in the Court Street M. E. church block.

—Rockford Register: G. W. Bissel for five years a first class workman and expert in Price's glove works, has left and gone to Janesville, where he will take charge of a morocco works. He understands his business, and will win if there's half a show.

—Prof. S. H. Hayner will return tomorrow from a three weeks tour in the northern part of the state, and will assist in the music at the Congregational church next Sabbath. He reports a successful business trip.

—Concannon, at the Star, will furnish the supper for the Pleasure Club dance this evening. Street cars will run from the Armory to the corner of Main and East Milwaukee streets for the accommodation of those attending the party.

—The ladies of the Woman's Exchange will give a supper on Friday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock, in their rooms, 31 South Main street. Strawberry shortcake and cream, hot coffee and everything that will provide for a good supper will be served. Ice cream will be served at any time during the evening.

—Another of the Rectory society suppers will be given at the Kenilworth block Wednesday evening of next week. It is needless to say that there will be a very tempting bill of fare, for the Rectory society suppers are too well known to need any praise.

—The bond required of John C. Hurd and J. P. Towne, administrators of the estate of the late Silas Hurd, is reported to be the largest ever required of administrators in any estate in Rock county, viz. $300,000. The estate of Mr. Hurd will inventory over a quarter of a million dollars.

—Excellent work was done at the Light Infantry target practice last night. Captain Newman headed the list with a score of twenty out of a possible twenty-five. Next came J. B. Whiting, Jr., with nineteen and Charles Barnard with eighteen. Scores of fifteen, sixteen and seventeen were quite numerous.

—Frank Secor came before Judge Patterson this morning for stealing carpenter's tools from the Mayflower and from Nicholas Welsh. The tools were stolen about five weeks ago. Some of them were found at Secor's home and some in second hand stores. The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

—News reached the city yesterday of the death of Mr. C. E. K. Whitcomb which occurred at his home in Holdredge Nebraska, on Tuesday last. Deceased resided for several years in this city and was a deacon in the Baptist church. Mrs. Whitcomb (formerly Mrs. Sarah Griswold) is an aunt of Mrs. O. B. Conrad, of this city. On learning of the serious illness of Mr. Whitcomb Mrs. Conrad started on last Monday for Holdredge, but could not have reached her destination before the death of her uncle. Deceased had many friends in this city who will be pained at reading the news of his death.

BECK ON THE STAND.

He Claims He Was at Home When the Tracy Barn Burned.

William Beck took the stand in his own behalf late yesterday afternoon. He swore that on the Thursday night when W. J. Tracy's barn was burned he had been at his own home. A direct denial was made to the story of his being seen on the road near Tracy's Thursday night or Friday morning.

Other witnesses swore that a man on horseback had passed over the road from the Tracy barn early Friday morning. This man, they swore, was not Beck, but the tracks made by his horse, Attorney Randall insisted, were very probably the ones which had resulted in Beck's arrest

Arguments in the case were begun this forenoon at half past ten. The case may perhaps go to the jury before court adjourns to-day.

EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR.

The Maximum Speed of a Railroad Locomotive.

Many questions have been asked concerning the highest speed possible to be attained by a railroad locomotive. The London Engineer submits the statement that eighty miles an hour is the greatest possible limit, and for the following reason:

Because no greater velocity has ever been attained.

Because of the resistance of the air.

Because of the back pressure of the cylinders.

Because of the amount of power which must "no doubt be lost in imparting violent motions to masses of metal which can make no return when coming to rest. The swinging of the engine, the excessive vibration of its parts, and the jar and concussion all operate to the same end, and tend to keep down the speed."

Because of "the extraordinary retarding influence of very moderate rising gradients."

Because of the coupling rod—"it appears to be beyond question that coupling an engine tends to keep down the speed."

Do you fish, hunt or play ball? If so, before purchasing an outfit we would call to your attention, in another column the advertisement of Janney & Graham Gun Co., Chicago, who will be pleased to send you their catalogue free. This firm is entirely reliable, and will do all it agrees to, viz: furnish best of goods at exceptionally low prices.

Nurses, Attention!

All nurses of the city, and all who desire to become nurses, are requested to meet at the class room in Court Street church Saturday, May 12th, at 3 p. m., where they will learn of something to their interest.

THE WEATHER.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 56 degrees above zero. Light rain with east wind At one o'clock p. m. the register was 65 degrees above zero. Cloudy with northeast wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 65 and 87 degrees above zero.

HENRY F. JANES.

Meeting the Founder of Janesville Fifty-two Years Ago.

Mr. A. T. Walker Tells How the Old Pioneer Appeared in September, '36.

Mr. A. T. Waker furnishes the Milton Junction News the following interesting piece of personal reminiscence of Janesville and its founder. The News introduces the local history by stating: "We give herewith Mr. A. T. Walker's impression of Janesville and its founder, in September, 1836, before he had looked upon Du Lac prairie, where he was to live and die."

"We arrived at Rock river about sunset. They had been holding a politics caucus, it being two weeks before their election of councilors to the territorial council. This is the place of Jacksonism among the squatters. As we walked up to the people standing about the house, we were interrogated by: Where are you from? Where are you going? Are you looking for claims? We were assured that this was the best country in the world, and here was the best chance for making claims we would find in the territory. I was tired and not in best humor, so I told them I cared nothing about their country or claims; I wanted to know where I could make a claim of something to eat, and a place to lay my bones that night. I inquired of a by-stander, for Esquire Janes. He informed me that he was the gentleman. When I looked up and beheld a man who stood six feet, with a very imposing pair of black whiskers, his face looked as if it had not come in contact with a razor for two weeks; his legs were encased in mole skin, but when he put them in he made a mistake by putting his legs through a good third of a yard too far, thereby cutting off all connection between them and his stockings, the feet of which were encased in a stout pair of thick shoes. On his upper story he wore a mole skin round-about, which was not inclined to have any connection with his lower garments, and, to cap out, he wore a coarse seal cap. This was Esq. Janes, whom I had been recommended to call upon, as he was the principal character on the diggings. He invited us to go home with him, which invitation we accepted."

THE COAL DEALERS.

Second Annual Meeting of the North-Western Coal Dealers' Association

Consideration of trade topic occupied the attention of the Coal Dealers' association of the Northwest, which held its annual meeting at Elk's hall, yesterday. The business was finished up by evening when the following officers were elected: President, C. C. Keeler, of Beloit, Wis.; vice-president, M. J. Braiden, of Rochelle Ill.; C. C. Jones, of Rockford, Ill., secretary and treasurer; board of directors, J. F. Smith, Freeport, Ill.; Frank Harrall, Aurora, Ill.; M. J. Hunter, Elgin, Ill; C. F. Cooley, Madison, Wis.; R. O. Brown, Oshkosh, Wis.; W. W. Jackson, of Dubuque, Ia.; J. S. Wyhe, Davenport, Ia.; G. H. Wilbur, Burlington, Ia.

The business of the convention, outside of routine matter, comprised a number of amendments to the constitution and bylaws, the principal one being a change of the date of the annual convention from the first Wednesday in May to the first Wednesday in June. The offices of secretary and treasurer were combined. Chicago was chosen as the next meeting place, invitations having been received also from Davenport, Ill., and Joliet, Ill. A member from that city created some merriment in urging its selection by enlarging on its well-known hospitality. Even now, he said, they were entertaining several distinguished men from Chicago.

The Northwestern Coal Dealers' association has been in existence two years. Its object is to assist retail dealers in protecting his trade from indiscriminate shipping by miners and shippers of coal to individual consumers. In the territory covered by this association there are between 3,500 and 4,000 dealers, but only 300 of them are members of the association. About 100 of them are in attendance upon the convention.

"We want it distinctly understood," said President Keeler last night, "that we are not here to screw up the price of coal. That is not our business at all, as the local exchanges regulate the prices. Our only business is to bring about protection to retail dealers."

To avoid any confusion, the constitution of the association defines what constitutes a coal dealer. Most people look upon the coal dealer as an individual whose only purpose is to rob him, but this is the coal dealer's definition of himself: "Any person who engages in the sale of coal as a regular business, buying to sell again, who shall own or operate a yard or railroad side-track privileges, owning or renting scales, keeping an office, and displaying a sign, shall be regarded as a retail dealer, and all miners and shippers shall be eligible to membership in this association, provided such miner or shipper does not sell, or cause to be sold, coal at retail, except through a regular dealer in any town or city outside the town or city in which are located the mines or general offices of such miner or shipper for the territory covered by this association."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE journeyman painters and decorators of Rochester, N. Y., have asked for a nine-hour day at ten-hour wages—$2.25. Some of the firms have granted the advance, and it is believed that the others will accede. Carpenters and masons work but nine hours in that city. There are about 500 journeymen painters and decorators in Rochester.

A SINGULAR DEATH.

How a Long-Tailed Coat Led to a Tramp's Sudden Taking-Off.

The other day there arrived in Rawlins an old hunter from the Elk Head mountains of Northern Colorado, who brought with him a story of singular death, writes a correspondent of the New Orleans Times-Democrat from Rawlins, Wy. T.

The curious and fatal tale as it fell from the lips of the narrator is substantially as follows: About a month ago there came to the hunters' winter camp in the Elk Head mountains a foot-sore, ragged and generally dilapidated specimen of the disreputable genus tramp. Some more than usually unaccountable vagary of his wandering disposition had induced this habitual tramp-ist to leave his birthright of familiar and well-trodden railroad ties and strike out into the plains and mountains. He had attached himself to a party of hunters, and when this party started for the railroad with winter-gathered furs and pelt ries our adventurous tramp elected to remain still longer amid nature's savage wilds, and accordingly struck out to join a second hunting party, located deeper in the mountains. A blinding snow-storm came on, the wanderer lost his way, and when he stumbled on the camp of the narrator of this story was half frozen and utterly exhausted. He was promptly succored and kindly cared for, and after a few days' rest and recruiting again started for the camp he was in search of, provided with full directions from his hunter host as to route.

One of the articles of attire sported by our tramp was a long-tail coat, and in one of the pockets of this coat was a quart bottle of whisky. When he left his former companions the other tail pocket was likewise provided for, but he had been lightened of his load by a constant and exhaustive process of tramp absorption. Several days passed and the hunter had almost forgotten his tramping guest, when his memory was most suddenly and effectually refreshed.

Returning one evening from the usual daily hunt the hunter found at a short distance from his camp the body of a man suspended from the limb of a large tree. The mere finding of a man hung in the midst of these wild mountain solitudes was in itself surely singular enough, but the manner of the hanging was more singular still. The man was hung by his coat—a long-tail coat. Investigation speedily revealed to the hunter that the dead man was his late tramping guest, and also explained the manner of his sudden and singular taking off.

He had evidently ascended the tree (the upper branches being broken and bent as by the rapid downward passage of a heavy body), doubtless for the purpose of looking over the country to make sure of his course of travel. While so engaged he had fallen headlong. In his downward passage his long coat-tails had wrapped about the lower limb of the tree (some fifteen feet from the ground), and by the weight and action of the bottle of whisky in the pocket, had been firmly and fatally knotted there. The coat, fastened at the throat by a stout buckskin thong, had been jerked up over the head, hopelessly entangling the arms and shutting off respiration. Thus ridiculously doomed the tramp had quickly died. When found the body was frozen as hard as a rock. There was nothing on the person of the unfortunate to indicate identity, and at the foot of the fatal tree on the wild mountain side is now a nameless grave.

A SPECIAL VERDICT ORDERED.

Thirty-Five Questions for the Jurors in the Heddles Case to Consider.

Some of the Arguments Before Judge Bennet this Afternoon.

Arguments in the Heddles case were begun this afternoon. The reputation of the attorneys engaged brought many to the court room to hear the case discussed.

Most of the morning was taken up in securing a special verdict. The verdict as finally made up included a list of thirty-five questions for the jury to answer.

Among the points raised was whether the failure of the company to provide and maintain gates and flagmen at the Wall street crossing contributed to the plaintiff's injury; whether the engine in approaching the crossing was running at a greater rate of speed than six miles an hour; whether the railroad company's employes exercised the required caution; whether the boy himself exercised due caution, and whether the boy in approaching in the track had looked for and seen the defendant company's engine approaching.

At three o'clock Attorney Jeffris opened the case for the plaintiff. He is still speaking as the Gazette goes to press.

NOVELTIES IN RINGS.

What Is Fashionable Nowadays in Golden Circlets of High Price.

"Rings," said a Maiden lane jeweler to a Mail and Express reporter recently, "do not change materially in style at this season of the year. The new designs come in about midsummer."

The United States in general, and New York City in particular, is specially noted for the excellent quality of rings now manufactured. This high position has only been obtained by diligent research and study. The jewelry manufactured in France is light, neat and pretty, but the fact that Parisian jewelers are required by law to make nothing less than eighteen carats fine is responsible for the flimsiness of the work turned out. The English jeweler, on the other hand, works in a fashion diametrically opposite to that of his French brother, using the heavy, bulky patterns. The more gold is utilized the more favor it finds in the sight of the English public. The New York maker has profited by the faults, if faults they may be termed, of both the English and French workmen, by adopting a happy medium in manufacturing rings in such a manner so as not to make use of such a large quantity of gold, and by so doing he is enabled to give the stone with which the ring is garnished a fine setting, thereby making it, instead of the metal, the principal object to be desired. The manufacturer who uses only a sufficient quantity of gold, enough to secure the safety of the stone, finds his goods more in demand than those who adopt either French or English fashion.

The styles of rings have changed wonderfully during the last few years. Formerly corals, cameos and garnets found favor with the fair sex, but nowadays diamonds are the most popular stones with fashionable people. Many rings are made of a combination of rubies and diamonds, while turquois and opal are in general use. Opal was considered up to a few years ago a sign of ill-omen, except for persons born during the month of October; but a reaction has set in, and it is steadily gaining in favor. The designs worn now are often original with the wearer, and any one can have a ring manufactured, no matter how peculiar or intricate the design, providing he is willing to pay for his originality, which often comes high.

The most popular ring for gentlemen is the initial, the top of which is usually made of black onyx, the letter being fastened securely to it, and is often times studded with rose diamonds. These rings are now made as cheaply as the ordinary cameo, and have altogether taken the place of that once fashionable stone. Ladies' low-priced rings are generally combinations of garnets and pearls, turquois and rose diamonds, all prettily shaded. Moonstone, now coming into prominence, is a higher-priced article. The United States uses five-eighths of the diamond product of the world. The best stones and the most artistic lapidary work are in constant demand, no other description finding a sale. Sapphire is already fashionable, and promises not to decrease in public favor. There are pink, yellow, green, as well as blue sapphires, each of which has its admirers, and all of which are gaining in popularity.

"I know of no remedial agent possessing so wide a range of action as the Turkish Bath. Under given circumstances, and judiciously applied, it regulates the action of the heart, gives tone to the nervous system, expands the organs of respiration, restores the functions of the skin and kidneys, stimulates the appetite, promotes digestion, induces sleep, and gives rest to the mentally tired and physically fatigued organism."

WINDOWS OF THE SOUL

The Eyes Through Which Our Thoughts Are Read and Seen.

Some poetical gentleman has called the eye "the window of the soul," and at all times and among nearly all people it is regarded as the great feature of expression; that is, by persons who are neither amateurs in nor professors of that quasi-science physiognomy. These gentlemen, says the San Francisco Chronicle, devote their time and treatises as much to the nose as to the eyes, propounding rules of characters deducted from the wrinkles of forehead and warts on the cheek, writing learnedly of the lineaments of the cheek, the signification of the chin, the index of the mouth and a score of other diversities of feature.

First, as to the eyes as a feature in National physiognomy. Lavator, when discussing this question, gives the following as the result of his observations: That the Italians have small eyes; the Germans light-colored eyes, surrounded with many wrinkles; the English strong, open, liberal and steadfast eyes, and the Swiss dull eyes.

The Laplanders, according to Buffon, have narrow eyes, the pupils of a yellow brown, inclining to a black, and the eyelids retiring towards the temple. The eyes of the Tartars, he says, are small and sunken, the eyebrows large, covering the eyes, and the eyelids thick. The eyes of the Chinese are small, their eyebrows large and the eyelids raised.

The New Hollander had a dull, black eye, thick eyebrows and eyelids half shut—a habit acquired in fancy to preserve the eyes from the gnats. To the Spaniard Buffon gives "good eyes," to the Goths, blue eyes, and to the Findlanders, heavy lids and the iris of a deep yellow.

Winckelmann holds the opinion that the shape and color of the eyes are very largely the result of climatic and other direct conditions. Thus, he says, the small, half-closed, blinking eyes of the Esquimaux are due to nature's attempt to preserve the sight from the dry, cold air and the effusion of light from the snow amidst which they live. The small eyes of all the distant and northern nations, he says in another place, are in consequence of the imperfection of their growth. It is upon the authority of a philosophic writer named De Pauw that the Peruvian has an eye, the apple of which is black and the white not very clear.

This reminds one of the description by Russell of a Senegambian's eye, which he likens to a boiled prune set in a plover's egg. Another authority states that the eye of the Turk is devoid of passion or great enterprise, but that it is eloquent in all the penetration of benevolent cunning. This writer also says that the "silent eye" of the Englishman "seeks not to please;" that the eye of the Frenchman is "vivacious and unstable;" that the Italian's is "ardent" and the Dutchman's "half open and without thought."

Eyes have always been regarded as tribal indications. Tacitus, for example, describes the Germans as "fierce, with blue eyes and red hair." The Celts are described as swarthy and dark-eyed, while the Gauls are red-haired and light-eyed, while the Nubians and Egyptians have always been spoken of as dark-eyed. These characteristics have not apparently changed, and it may be said roundly that the people of the temperate zone have generally light-colored eyes, while those of the extreme zones are dark.

Of the races, the only one that can be said to be light-eyed is the Caucasian, and even this race is by no means uniform as to color in its eyes. The entire human history goes to prove that the light-haired, blue-eyed races are capable of the highest degree of civilization, but it does not by any means prove that the highest degree of civilization is confined to the blonde races. There was a period when blue-eyed persons were rarely seen, and to-day seven-eighths of the world's inhabitants have dark eyes. Not only is the majority on the side of the dark-eyed, but statistics would seem to indicate that that majority is increasing. In a paper read some time ago before the Swedish Anthropological Society it was stated that brown eyes were becoming more common in Switzerland, North Germany, Belgium and Sweden, and that out of every one hundred sets of light-eyed parents fifty-six per cent. of the children had dark eyes.

In this calculation blue gray and gray eyes were classified as blue, and, if there is any weight to be attached to the report, it would show that blue eyes, even in a blue-eyed country, are becoming decidedly scarce, which ought to be good news for the blondes.

It will be sequential here to quote a paragraph or two from Lavater concerning the color of the eyes. "The most common to the eyes," he writes, "are the orange, yellow, green, blue, gray and gray mixed with white. The blue and orange are most predominant and are often found in the same eye." "Eyes supposed to be black," says Buffon, "are only yellow, brown or a deep orange; to convince ourselves of which we need but look at them closely, for when seen at a distance or turned towards the light, they appear to be black, because the yellow brown color is so contrasted to the white of the eye that the opposition makes it supposed black.

"Eyes also of a less dark color pass for black, but are not esteemed so fine as the other because the contrast is not so great. There are also yellow eyes which do not appear black because the colors are not deep enough to be overpowered by the shade. It is not uncommon to perceive shades of orange, yellow, gray and blue in the same eye, and wherever blue appears, however small the tincture, it becomes the predominant color and appears in streaks over the whole iris.

"The finest eyes are those which we imagine to be black or blue. Vivacity and fire, which are the principal characteristics to the eyes, are the more emitted when the colors are deep and contrasted than when slightly shaded. Black eyes have most strength of expression and most vivacity; but the blue have most mildness and are more arch. In the former there is an ardor uninterruptedly bright, because the color, which appears to us uniform, emits similar reflections every way we look at it. But modifications are distinguished in the light which animates blue eyes, because there are various tints of color producing various reflections."

The Champion Mean Man.

There lived in Benford County, Va., a family by the name of D., consisting of the elder D., two old maid daughters and D., Jr. It was the year 1872. The father was quite old; his son (of whom I speak) already had charge of the farm. He was one of those "this land is posted" "beware of trespassing" sort of farmers, so much so that his neighbors would have nothing to do with him; he was so hated by neighboring farmers that when D—, Sr., was taken very ill no one in the immediate vicinity responded to the call for aid in nursing the sick. A Mr. H—, residing some distance away, hearing of the serious illness of Mr. D—, Sr., went at once to the sick man's bedside and attended his wants day and night for a fortnight, when he (the old man) went the way of all flesh. A few days after the sad event Mr. H— was presented a bill by D—, Jr., for fifteen dollars, for two weeks, board while attending his dying father, which was paid without a word.
